

Jean Grillo

My husband, a painter, had his most challenging art experiences as a young art student in New York in the 1970s at the Educational Alliance. We are talking about New York art history, not just current cultural needs. Money can't replace what would be lost if this school were to be diminish. The Lower East Side would lose a part of its soul.